

What does meaningful youth participation and call to action look like for you?

Lively

not tokenistic

development

Means having the specific issues of young people-highlighted and discussed and responded to (substantively)

Inclusive and representative collective process

Breaking the silence, raising voice

All youth can speak freely

Meaningful youth participation for me also means giving voice and ability to influence for the most marginalized. To allow for views that we are not comfortable listening to, and also adults learning through the process

What does meaningful youth participation and call to action look like for you?

Being able to directly participate in the legislative process and having our voices considered with the importance/value it deserves in intergenerational spaces.

Meaningful engagement and representation of young people. Making spaces youth centric and safe. Focus on diversity and inclusion.

designing with youth during the process, not just including them at the end youth leading their own agendas in an enabling environment

चुप्पी को छोड़ कर अत्याचार के खिलाफ आवाज़ उठानी चाहिए

co-leading and co-creating the process

Giving you the platform to engage in anything that concerns them.

Meaningful youth participation is when we are heard and acknowledged. When door opens for us to take our part and do action in a way that works for us and benefits the youth more that is where we became fulfilled as youth.

Fearless, Intersectional lens

What does meaningful youth participation and call to action look like for you?

There is a space, a voice, influence and audience for youth participation

Collective Voice

not being afraid to be jailed

Critical thinking and planning, along with political theory needs to be a part of schooling and core curriculums in school engaging, free but collective effort, inclusion, youths being heard and encouraged

Meaningful action means inclusion, equality and justice in all aspects. The dialogue must be intergenerational and intersectional, with accountability and action just not only on paper

All youth can speak freely

Making everyone heard

Youth engagement is crucial for action against various agendas. Educating youths, training and developing them, inclusive in decision making promotes youth empowerment also helps find possible solutions to social development issues worldwide.

As a young feminist, what does feminist accountability look like to you?

